

DENALIGUIDE'S GOLD MINER OSCILLATOR APRIL 20, 2014 BY WHAT MEASURE ?

I SO fail to understand the attempts to portray some recurring phenomena as incontrovertible scientific fact to prove a point of view, instead of merely assessing the probabilities. It puzzles me further that such is done in the absence of other data in different systems to attempt find correlating data to increase the reliability and validity of such conclusions.

Additionally, I ask myself why anyone uses data from the venue that has been the conduit of what I think is false and misleading information. For instance, do you not question the validity of data when buying something. For instance, KIA Motors admitted they falsified data on Fuel Consumption, in NEW CARS, not some corner car lot guy selling you a used car. CUO BONO ? Who profits. Have we ALL had the skepticism circuit removed from our thinking so that when we see someone doing the "Walk of Shame" as they exit the NoTell Motel, while the JPM limo is parked around back, that we don't ask ourselves if they have been sleeping with the enemy? Excuse my bluntness but this is for real, and the money they screw you out of is for keeps, maybe the money you will need to keep your family safe and off the streets some day.

Given our human tendencies to bias, and thus bias confirmation, I note some of the gloom-sayers that call themselves Bull in PM's have been making $$ on the short side. Kudo's to them, except, given the screwy nature of the PM Complex and the political arena they dance in, being short the actual ETF seems an unnecessary risk when there are INVERSE ETF's available. Thus I ascribe both both a fear element and a confirmation bias to the downside, for this particular writer to forecast severely lower prices for the PM Complex in their most recent public pronouncement. Another write postulates a repeated 13.5 mo cycle in the PM Complex with uneven sine wave tops, to assure us lower PM prices are in our future on the basis of this one cycle, in a vacuum, as well as failing to describe cycle failures, extensions and truncations. Sad. Also amusing that they as consultants and advisers would so cavalierly risk their reputations.

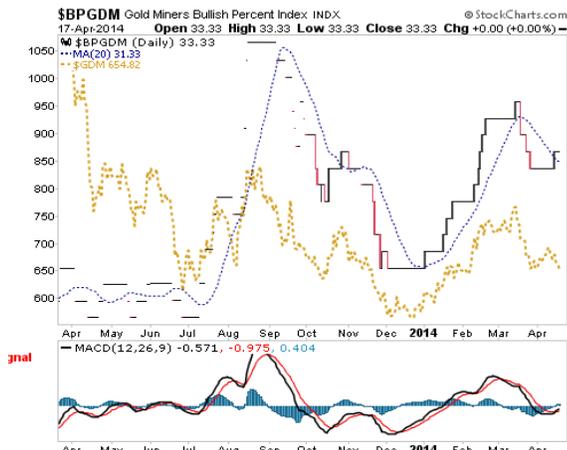

So with the Gold Miner Oscillator above in a NO SELL ZONE (downside), we await the basing and upturn hinted at by the $GDM KST ("Know its Sure Thing" MACD style, Centered Oscillator). Will it happen? It may. It IS a probability since doesn't often turn around, once it makes a move, but it still could. Thus the House Odds for IT, are on its upturn. As well, the HUI Gap Fill Zone has contained the trading action so far for the last 30 days and the only really negative action occurred on Both Apr 15 & Good Friday week which I noted would happen, several times before.

All characters and data in this report are real and bear no resemblance to the fiction and tainted price discovery provided in the media by the CRIMEX.

In the stead of that drumbeat of Doom & Gloom for the PM Complex, I offer on this page a few technical charts, which, to me, point to probabilities of basing and short to intermediate potential for positive action in the PM Complex. In addition, the next page contains Eight (8) chart formats depicting positive PM developments that I think anyone would disregard at their own peril, financial and otherwise.

All I can see about these charts is that they are based on different aspects of NON-Crimex data. NOTHING here suggests we are anywhere but at a bottom. Sentiment, moving averages, SRL's, commodity prices, Gaps, volume, Linear Regression, long term trends, chart formations, all suggest we are at a bottom, "deep in the hole @ shortstop, about to throw out a double play" in baseball terms. CRIMEX data IMO, is criminal.

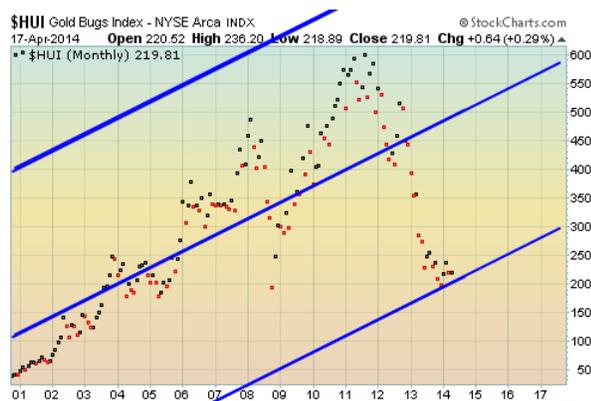

Sentiment, Broad Commodities Movement, Long Term Trends, Price Speed Resistance Lines (SRL's), Gaps, Accumulation / Distribution Volume, Trend Changes, its all there in the above charts, not an indicator alone.

And throw in a couple more Super Long Term measures and formations in Bullish Perspective below as well, for additional support, documentation and confirmation. Its all there. Cross-validating each other. Not a single indicator alone. Again, working probabilities, not forecasting or predicting. Figuring the odds !!

DENALIGUIDE'S STRAIGHT TALK

What I think investors need to be skeptical about is, that simply because a phenomena repeats in a certain number of times, that on its own its is a valid indicator of something. Thus, say with a Point & Figure Chart, unique as it maybe, I trust it not to go to the Indicated Potential Target, without corroborating evidence from SEVERAL other independent sources. Until that time, I remain aware of the item in question but skeptical of it as SINGLE item indicator.
