“The seven years of abundance in Egypt came to an end, and the seven years of famine began, just as Joseph had said.”

<https://www.biblegateway.com/passage/?search=Genesis%2041>

“Joseph was thirty years old when he entered the service of Pharaoh King of Egypt. And Joseph went out from Pharaoh’s presence and traveled throughout Egypt. During the seven years of abundance the land produced plentifully. Joseph collected all the food produced in those seven years of abundance in Egypt and stored it in the cities. In each city he put the food grown in the fields surrounding it. Joseph stored up huge quantities of grain, like the sand of the sea; it was so much that he stopped keeping records because it was beyond measure.

The seven years of abundance in Egypt came to an end, and the seven years of famine began, just as Joseph had said. There was famine in all the other lands, but in the whole land of Egypt there was food. When all Egypt began to feel the famine, the people cried to Pharaoh for food. Then Pharaoh told all the Egyptians, “Go to Joseph and do what he tells you.”

When the famine had spread over the whole country, Joseph opened all the storehouses and sold grain to the Egyptians, for the famine was severe throughout Egypt. And all the world came to Egypt to buy grain from Joseph, because the famine was severe everywhere.”

The above message is thousands of years old! However, today governments worldwide believe and act as though they know much better than to heed this ancient message from Joseph to the Pharaoh. In essence the message says, “When times are prosperous save for when times are bad.”

However, the Federal Reserve Banks of the world are required to encourage borrowing and spending when times turn bad. They lower interest rates in order to make borrowing easier. They create and lend electronic money in order to save important financial institutions that are in trouble. They use their electronic money to buy up failing assets and keep them alive. When times turn bad their message is “Borrow and spend.” They have eliminated that part of the message that suggests saving when times are good. Not only have they eliminated that part of the message but they also punish savers by constantly over time destroying the buying power of their savings. The countries of this world owe trillions of their money and are constantly creating trillions more that will never be paid back. What can we do to protect ourselves and our families from this constant destruction of the buying power of our money and the shifting from good times to bad times? The answer is we must learn how to shift our investments from one type of asset when times are good to a different type of asset when times are bad. Are there any reliable tools available that will help us know when to shift our assets over time?
