Excerpts from:

“Until a few years ago, the idea that market movements are patterned was highly controversial, but recent scientific discoveries have established that pattern formation is a fundamental characteristic of complex systems, which include financial markets.

Some such systems undergo "punctuated growth," that is, periods of growth alternating with phases of non-growth or decline, building fractally into similar patterns of increasing size. This is precisely the type of pattern identified in market movements by R.N. Elliott some sixty years ago.

*Most important to individuals, portfolio managers and investment corporations is that the Wave Principle often indicates in advance the relative magnitude of the next period of market progress or regress. Living in harmony with those trends can make the difference between success and failure in financial affairs.”*

PATTERN # 1 A

$400.00 SILVER?

The left side of this chart shows a rising logarithmic channel pattern in silver bullion. The price of silver bullion topped and slightly exceeded the upper trend line of the logarithmic channel in 1980.

The right side of this chart shows us that silver bullion has formed a “similar pattern of increasing size”. It remains to be seen if silver will also reach the upper trend line of its current rising logarithmic channel pattern. If it does reach the upper trend line this chart will have indicated in advance “... the relative magnitude of the next period of market progress ...”

“ ... the Wave Principle often indicates in advance the relative magnitude of the next period of market progress ...”

“ ... building fractally into similar patterns of increasing size.”
